SEND Class Teacher (Primary Trained) – Fieldstone School (Newton Abbot)

Contract: Full-time, Permanent

Start Date: As soon as possible

Are you looking for a role where you can truly make a difference?

At Fieldstone School, we are seeking a committed and compassionate SEND Class Teacher (Primary) to join our specialist SEMH provision in Newton Abbot. This is an opportunity to work with a unique cohort of pupils and to be part of a team that prioritises relationships, inclusion, and high expectations, enabling children to re-engage with education and achieve meaningful outcomes.

Why join Fieldstone School?

- Work within a therapeutic, relational, and trauma-informed environment
- Deliver a creative, flexible curriculum tailored to individual needs
- Be part of a high-trust, supportive team culture
- Have genuine autonomy to adapt teaching and learning approaches
- Access strong opportunities for professional development and progression

About the Role

You will be based at our Newton Abbot site, working with younger pupils with Social, Emotional and Mental Health (SEMH) needs, many of whom have experienced trauma or adverse childhood experiences.

You will:

- Plan and deliver adaptive, engaging lessons that meet a wide range of needs
- Build strong, trusting relationships with pupils to support engagement and progress
- Take a relational and therapeutic approach, recognising that behaviour is communication
- Provide high-quality pastoral support alongside academic teaching
- Work collaboratively with colleagues to ensure consistent, high-quality provision
- Maintain high expectations for both learning and personal development

Who We Are Looking For

We are looking for a teacher who:

- Is primary-trained with strong classroom practice
- Has experience of, or a strong interest in, SEMH/SEND education
- Is resilient, reflective, and solution-focused
- Is committed to building positive relationships and understanding behaviour
- Can adapt quickly and think creatively to meet pupils' needs
- Values teamwork and contributes positively to a collaborative staff culture

About Us

Fieldstone School (formerly School for Inspiring Talents) is an independent therapeutic day school for pupils aged 5–16 with SEMH needs. We support young people who have found mainstream education challenging to re-engage with learning and succeed. We operate across two sites in Devon (Newton Abbot and Ashburton), offering a specialist, person-centred approach to education.

Interested?

We strongly encourage informal conversations or visits so you can experience our provision first-hand.
